Starter:

An important note is that this book is also for people who do not have any faith or even the slightest of an open mind to a Higher Power.

Some words in this text that normally wouldn't be in capital letters are, and this occurs when I'm giving a different title to the power behind the concept known as 'God' or the other realm where God dwells. For example: Celestial Intelligence = the experience of Spirit = the experience of God, or Devine Sphere = the experience of God or the immeasurable, inconceivable other realm that exists (apart from the world of the five senses).

Other terms in this text given to the power behind the concept known as 'God' are: The Master of Eternity, Greater Intellect, Supreme Wisdom, Highest Intelligence, The Puppet Master of The Planet, Highest Vision, The Greatest Being, The Source, The Spirit and other similar titles.

The most pronounced brilliance with the most prevalent confidence a person can be and display on any given moment boils down to the experience behind this one word: Spirit (whether they're aware of it or not). The Spirit ((the power behind or in the life force or the life force itself (depending on how you want to view it: The Highest Power)) brings thick contentment, deep peace, highest happiness, the most triumphant joy, biggest boldness, a shining magnetism with the highest possible degree of charisma and the mass amplification of talents.

This is combined with faculties, gifts or capacities that would not have otherwise been recognised, and the most profound sense of self-worth and purpose. In experiencing Spirit, we also understand that its characteristics are higher energy than we're capable of comprehending (because it comes from an infinite, eternal place), faultless focus, and a stable, calm, flowingly unceasing creative mind along with the deepest quality of emotion or feelings that are possible within this realm of existence.

Because my eyes have been opened and the 'veil has been lifted' enough in my life, I realise that confidence is actually exactly the same as being Spirited. The truest, deepest, most quality filled feelings of confidence can only come from things of a Spiritual nature, whether a person who considers themselves to be very confident is aware of it or not. A person may still have a certain level of joy in their life, but it does not compare to Spiritual bliss and ecstatic awe as an obvious, definitely certain connection to the Higher Order, along with complete freedom of all neurotic life patterns that lead to anything less than your greatest possible life.

You might ask why Higher Intelligence (God) is required in order to live a life at the greatest possible level of wisdom, fulfillment, and brilliance. A deep sense of peace, contentment and happiness may be found without acknowledging the presence of a Higher Power, although in order to find any significant, lasting peace and joy, we'd obviously need to be following the Spiritual principles of giving our lives a way in some sort of service (even if we're not aware that it's a Spiritual principle) as to be diligently thinking of others. This in itself is an admirable trait, but I can't imagine it coming anywhere close to comparing to the tangible, consistent, often mind blowing and euphorically beautiful experiences that come from linking directly with the Other World.

The fear of death is also taken away when we come face to face with the Devine over and over again until our levels of faith are constantly or consistently ample. Although by using Spiritual practices without knowing they're Spiritual practices we can experience a degree of peace, happiness and contentment, it is obvious to me that knowing oneself to be a Celestial Channel is simply much more filled with life, joy, peace, purpose, brilliance, creativity, magnetism, never ending wealth, affluence and every truly great thing.
